NOTES:

Using material from your paper elsewhere: In assigning your copyright, you are not forfeiting your right to use your contribution elsewhere. This you may do after seeking permission from the Society, via the Publishing House. The 'Terms of Use for Authors' document can be found at http://www.geolsoc.org.uk/author\_terms

Requests from third parties: All requests to reprint your contribution, or a substantial part of it, in another publication will be subject to your approval. The party seeking permission will be instructed to write to you and will be told that if they do not hear from you within four weeks of writing to you, they can assume consent.

Photocopying: The Society's publications are registered with the Copyright Clearance Center, a non-profit-making organization which offers centralized licensing arrangements for photocopying within the USA, and with the Copyright Licensing Agency, a similar body within the UK.

Employers as copyright holder. It is understood that in some cases copyright will be held by the contributor's employer. If so, the Society requires non-exclusive permission to deal with requests from third parties, on the understanding that any requests it receives from third parties will be handled as outlined above (i.e. you and not your employer will be asked to approve the proposed use). The Society is prepared to give blanket permission to companies to use material produced by their employees for internal use, or for limited circulation reports. Such permission should be sought in writing.

Electronic Publishing: The copyright rules apply to all Society publications, whether in paper format or on electronic media. No Society publication may be captured or downloaded electronically into any format without the Society's specific written permission. The Society is prepared to give blanket permission to companies to use material produced by their employees for internal use. Such permission should be sought in writing.
